Security

The Auguste Escoffier School of Culinary Arts takes campus security very seriously. As a precaution, office doors, classroom doors and other areas should be locked and secured when not occupied or scheduled for activities. If anyone suspicious is observed in or around the classroom, contact an AESCA staff member or your Chef Instructor immediately.

If you find safety hazards that you feel should be addressed immediately, such as a broken chair, an unidentified bothersome smell inside a building, or a trip hazard, please contact an AESCA staff member or your Chef Instructor immediately so that we may investigate the problem.

Emergency Messages

Emergency messages are often received for faculty, staff and students. All attempts are made to deliver messages deemed to have urgency. The least interruption possible is the goal; but, if necessary, an emergency message will be delivered to either a student or instructor during class. Persons wishing to get an emergency message to a student should contact the Campus Director at 512-451-5743, or, the Registrar at 512-451-5743. The caller must be able to provide valid emergency information before a message is delivered.

For extreme emergencies call 911.
